

Contents

Notes on Contributors	vii
Introduction	1
PART I
1 How Criminal Defences Work William Wilson	7
2 Avoiding Criminal Liability and Excessive Punishment for Persons Who Lack Culpability: What Can and Should Be Done? Bob Sullivan	25
3 Prior Fault: Blocking Defences or Constructing Crimes J.J. Child	37
4 Transfer of Defences Michael Bohlander	51
5 Consent in the Criminal Law: The Importance of Relationality and Responsibility Jonathan Herring	63
6 Good and Harm, Excuses and Justifications, and the Moral Narratives of Necessity Susan Edwards	75
7 Duress and Normative Moral Excuse: Comparative Standardisations and the Ambit of Affirmative Defences Alan Reed	93
8 Of Blurred Boundaries and Prior Fault: Insanity, Automatism and Intoxication Arlie Loughnan and Nicola Wake	113
9 Mistaken Private Defence: The Case for Reform Claire de Than and Jesse Elvin	133
10 Statutory Defences of Reasonableness: Inexcusable Uncertainty or Reasonable Pragmatism Christopher J. Newman	145
11 How Do They Do That? Automatism, Coercion, Necessity, and Mens Rea in Scots Criminal Law Claire McDiarmid	159
12 In a Spirit of Compromise: The Irish Doctrine of Excessive Defence John E Stannard	171
PART II
13 Australia Mirko Bagaric	185
14 Canada Kent Roach	197
15 France Catherine Elliott	213

16	Germany	227
	Kai Ambos and Stefanie Bock
17	Islamic Law	241
	Mohammad M Hedayati-Kakhki
18	The Netherlands	255
	Erik Gritter
19	New Zealand	273
	Julia Tolmie
20	South Africa	289
	Gerhard Kemp
21	Sweden	301
	Petter Asp and Magnus Ulväng
22	Turkey	315
	R Murat Önok
23	United States of America	329
	Luis E Chiesa
	Index	343