

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Do Police Need Guns?	1
1.2	The American Paradox	3
	References	5
2	The Edge of the Knife: The Paradox of Police Power	7
2.1	Introduction	7
2.2	What Makes the Police Powerful?	8
2.3	The Marxist Critique	10
2.4	Policing as a Social Function	11
2.5	Police as the Agents of Legitimate State Violence	13
2.6	The Monetary Model of Power	15
2.6.1	The Port Arthur Massacre	16
2.6.2	The Melbourne Police Strike	16
2.7	Chapter Conclusion	17
	References	18
3	‘Only the Minimum Degree’: The Minimum Force
	Tradition	21
3.1	Introduction	21
3.2	Minimum Force and ‘Peel’s Principles’	22
3.3	Accident or Inevitable?	24
3.4	Does Minimum Force Require Peace, or Create It?	26
3.5	Chapter Conclusion	29
	References	31
4	‘As Well Armed as the Criminal’: The Armed Tradition	33
4.1	Introduction	33
4.2	The Armed Tradition in the United States	34

4.3	The Armed Tradition and Police Use of Firearms . . . . .	36
4.4	The Spread of the Armed Tradition . . . . .	39
4.5	A Case Study in Weaponisation: Victoria Police . . . . .	42
4.6	Chapter Conclusion . . . . .	46
	References . . . . .	48
5	Operationalising Minimum Force: The Need for Evidence . . . . .	53
5.1	Introduction . . . . .	53
5.2	The Doctrine of Minimum Force . . . . .	55
5.3	Study Context and Rationale . . . . .	57
5.4	The Operationalisation of Minimum Force . . . . .	59
5.4.1	England and Wales . . . . .	59
5.4.2	Canada . . . . .	60
5.4.3	New Zealand . . . . .	60
5.4.4	Australia . . . . .	61
5.5	Research Method . . . . .	62
5.5.1	Procedure . . . . .	62
5.5.2	Analysis . . . . .	62
5.5.3	Limitations . . . . .	63
5.6	Chapter Conclusion . . . . .	64
	References . . . . .	64
6	‘The Law of the Instrument’: Examining the Nexus Between Safety and the Routine Arming of Police Officers . . . . .	67
6.1	Introduction . . . . .	67
6.2	Community and Police Safety . . . . .	69
6.3	Research Findings: Community and Police Safety . . . . .	71
6.3.1	Population Data: National and City . . . . .	72
6.3.2	Sworn Police Personnel: National and City . . . . .	73
6.3.3	Key Crime Indicators . . . . .	74
6.3.4	Homicide . . . . .	75
6.3.5	Other Major Crime Indicators . . . . .	80
6.3.6	Other Major Crime Indicators: Analysis by Country . . . . .	82
6.3.7	Other Major Crime Indicators: Analysis by City . . . . .	85
6.3.8	Civilians Fatally Shot by Police . . . . .	88
6.3.9	Non-fatal Police Shootings: National . . . . .	91
6.3.10	Other Non-lethal Uses of Force: Conducted Energy Devices . . . . .	94

Contents	xii
6.3.11 Police Deaths: National .....	96
6.3.12 Police Deaths: City .....	97
6.3.13 Police Injury .....	98
6.4 Chapter Conclusion .....	99
References .....	107
7 ‘The Devil’s Right Hand’: Policing, Media and Weapons
Product Placement .....	111
7.1 Introduction .....	111
7.2 Product Placement .....	113
7.2.1 Product Placement: The Example of Tobacco .....	114
7.2.2 Weapon Product Placement .....	115
7.2.3 The Cultural Dominance of US Fictional Drama .....	122
7.3 Weapon Product Placement and Scripting .....	126
7.4 Chapter Conclusion .....	129
References .....	130
8 Do Police Need Guns? .....	135
8.1 Concluding Thoughts .....	135
References .....	141