

Contents

List of Figures	xiii
1. Introduction	1
Background	1
Historical context	4
A living tradition	8
The challenge of periodization	9
Focus on instruments and data	12
Three data revolutions of criminology	15
Prior research	20
Methodological reflections	24
2. Thinking about crime before criminology	30
Introduction	30
Critique of repressive norms	33
New criminal justice policy	34
Focus on labelling	36
Learning and crime	38
Luxury of the poor	41
Balzac's crime prevention manual	43
Evidentiary bases before systematic data	44
3. Civilization debate	49
Introduction	49
From state consolidation to European security order	50
Criminology as fear-inspired control?	52
Civilization and the crime drop	54
Crime rhetoric	56
Dupin and the map wars	58
Beyle on civilization	62
4. Breakthrough to data 1825–1827	66
Introduction	66
From vehicle to content	67

x	Contents
	Guerry de Champneuf	71
	Research programme	75
	A space allowing civilized disagreement	82
	Reception	86
5.	First criminology	91
	Introduction	91
	Charles Lucas	92
	Adolphe Quetelet	94
	André-Michel Guerry	96
	Emerging theory	97
	Consilience	111
6.	Anchoring criminal justice to facts	114
	Introduction	114
	The foil and the halo	115
	Mildening of manners and mores	117
	Preventive justice	119
	Prison reform	122
	Empirical study of criminal justice	132
7.	French civilization and German Kultur	136
	Introduction	136
	Julius	138
	Mittermaier	142
	Zachariä	149
	German reception	153
8.	Insight from critique: the Genevans	156
	Introduction	156
	The murdered criminologist	157
	The botanist	164
9.	From piecemeal reform to incremental research	173
	Introduction	173
	England: prequel or sequel?	174
	First criminology	180
	The dynamics of interconnected fields	187

10. The origins of criminology	191
Introduction	191
Structural conditions	192
Intentions in context	198
Most remarkable uniformity	202
Conclusion	205
 Bibliography	 211
Index	231